PUMPKIN SPICE UP AN ENTIRE SONG

ACTION GUIDE

mind can be taught to hold the instability with some measure of equilibrium, a new kind of happiness reveals itself.

Because of his unvarying emphasis on dukkha, the Buddha's teachings were often taken to be pessimistic, as if he were still a practicing ascetic. But he was not. As Upaka recognized but could not embrace, Buddha rejected the cultivation of painful states. But he also claimed that, like a doctor, he had to be realistic. One can of course deceive with false consolation, denying the illness; or one may exaggerate the malady and give up hope completely. But such a physician rejects the extremes and c

It's a new season!

Let's talk about pushing yourself out of your comfort zone. I know this sounds scary but it's so necessary!

This new season is all about diving into the depths of playing in a way where the piano no longer scares you!

Learning to become fluent in playing by number will do that for you!

This is the secret to being able to spice up your songs. No longer are you stuck playing a cool run in 1 song, now you can spice up many songs with this new trick!

I can't wait for you to see how this idea opens up a new season of playing!

Your friend,
Melody
